church.

The corner-stone of the new church was laid on May 7, 1902, by Robert White Lodge of Masona, of this city. The new edifice is of the colonial style of architecture, and is one of the handsomest in this section of the Virginias. This foundation is of gray limestone, and the super-structure is hult of light brown mottled Roman pressed brick. The trimmings are of light colonial brick, and the woodwork is painted ivery white. The interior of the church is decorated in buff, rose and white, and the bending of these colors is artistic in the extreme. Cathiedral and opalescent art glass is used with a beautiful effect throughout the building.

The structure is lighted by a system of concealed electric lights, and is heated by steam radiators. In addition to the auditorium, there is a Sunday-school department of five rooms, with folding partitions, a well equipped kitchen, pantry, tellot rooms, library and pastor's apartment. The estimated cost of the structure is more than $40,000. The committee under whose supervision the church was erected is headed by ex-Senator Charles J. Faulkner, who has been untiring in his efforts in behalf of the project.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
LEESBURG, VA., May 4.—On Saturday the case of John H. Skillman et als, vs.
Robert Costello was decided in favor of the plaintiff in the Circuit Court of Loudoun. The case had been before the Circuit Court of this county at the last term, when the Jury were unable to agree as to the heirship of John H. and Bushrod Skillman, of Spokane, Wash, to the late Travers Carter, of this county, who died intestate in 1892, possessed of a large landed estate. The case is one of peculiar hardship, involving the title to a farm of 800 acres purchased several years ago by Mr. Robert Costello, of this county, from Edwin J. Carter, of Marora, Ill, who represented himself as the sole help of Travers Carter, came to the knowledge of the Skillmans, who claimed to be the half brothers of Travers Carter, and thereupon instituted suit to recever their interests from the purchaser, Mr. Costollo. An issue out of chancery was made up to determine the fact of heirahip, and this was decided in favor of the Skillmans by the jury on Saturday, Mr. Costello was represented by Captula John H. Alexander and Judge R. H. Tabbs; the Skillmans by R. Walton Moore, of Fairfax county; N. C. Nichols and Charles P. and John Janney, of Teesburg.
